RE: Update on Wasatch Resource Recovery (WRR) Project

Dear Mayor Horrocks, City Council, and City Staff,

The South Davis Sewer District is pleased to announce a new operations partnership for the WRR food waste-to-energy project. OPAL Fuels now oversees the day-to-day management, and execution of operational improvement initiatives at the Project. With these changes, we have in place a new team with both the operational experience and financial capital to overcome key challenges.

Opal Fuels (<https://opalfuels.com/>) is a fully integrated, nationwide leader in the production and distribution of low-carbon intensity renewable natural gas (RNG), known for effective public-private collaborations. We believe this partnership will be highly beneficial, and we could not have asked for a better partner moving forward.

We recognize the importance of odor mitigation at the facility, particularly for Foxboro residents. To that end, the District has budgeted $2 million for odor control improvements at our North Salt Lake facility that, combined with our new team's investments, should significantly improve odor management.

We look forward to meeting with City staff soon to discuss these improvements and determine the best path forward. We remain committed to addressing past issues and value our relationship with North Salt Lake.

Sincerely,

Matthew Myers, P.E.
General Manager
South Davis Sewer District
